Daemyeong Performance Street was formed in the 2000s by artists who relocated to the area surrounding Keimyung University's Daemyeong campus in search of lower rental fees. Second only to Daehangno, this area has one of the highest concentrations of theater troupes and small theaters in the country. Daemyeong Performance Street is home to artists and arts organizations working in diverse genres (theater companies, musicians, art studios, online game producers and distributors, art management companies, music stores, etc.). One characteristic feature of this area is that small theatrical performances are staged here year-round. Home to indie hotspot "Club HEAVY" and located near Keimyung University's Daemyeong campus (a popular movie filming location), Daemyeong Performance Street is a must-see attraction for anyone with an interest in culture.

The main administration building, which is also Daemyeong campus' first building, was built by missionaries of the Northern Presbyterian Church (United States) in the style of a traditional American university, which explains why it is an exact replica of the main building of Harvard University. Today, the original buildings of only a few departments of the Daemyeong campus remain, including the College of Art. Owing to the elegant mood created by the red brick walls, ivy vines, and gardens that can be found throughout the campus, the site has frequently been used as a filming location for movies and television dramas, including the dramas Sandglass, East of Eden, Legend of Ambition, Boys Over Flowers, and Love Rain and movies Ditto, Once in a Summer, Everybody has Secrets, and Thirst.

Tip

Since starring in the television drama Love Rain, which was filmed at the university, Jang Keun-suk's growing popularity in Japan has made the university a must-see attraction for Japanese tourists visiting Daegu. Take some time to explore the campus and find the spots that were the backdrops of your favorite scenes!

❶ First scene in front of Adams Hall ("three-second road"): the first scene of Love Rain, where In-ha walks past Yun-hui on the ivy path in front of the art college
❷ "Three-second steps" in front of Adams Hall: the scene where In-ha, not caring that he is getting wet in the rain, grasps the top of the umbrella so that he can hold it over Yun-hui while they walk together
❸ Bench in front of Wilson Hall (College of Fine Arts): bench where Yun-hui liked to sit
❹ Adams Hall terrace: where In-ha composed the song "Love Rain" on his guitar after meeting Yun-hui
❺ Area in front of Shattuck Hall (College of Fashion): where the flag-lowering ceremony and festival scenes were filmed
❻ Open Amphitheater: where the C'est La Vie members sang during the school festival

❽ Uiyang Hall: where In-ha first saw Yun-hui and where Yun-hui liked to draw pictures

If you keep going toward Seobu Express Bus Terminal from the cathedral pond (Seongdangmot) next to the Daegu Arts Center, you will see a large “sashimi town” to your left. This is the famous Bokgaecheon Beongae Eosijang Sashimi Street (Daemyeong 10-dong, Nam-gu). With the completion of the covered stream here in 1993, wholesale fish merchants began gathering in the area. In its heyday, the area was home to 40 bustling restaurants.

Anjirang Gopchang Alley

Address | 63, Daemyeong-ro 36-gil, Nam-gu
Inquiries | +82-53-664-2765 (Department of Sanitation)

Anjirang Market, which is located halfway along the road between Anjirang Ogeori (five-way intersection) in Nam-gu and Apsan Mountain's Anjirang-gol, has recently been revitalized by the seasoned gopchang restaurants that have moved into the market over the past few years. Having begun in 1979 with the restaurant Chungbuk Sikdang, the market grew dramatically in 1998 with the increased number of stores and restaurants opened by people who had lost their jobs during the IMF crisis. Since then, this area has become a "Street of Youth" that is popular with young people and offers meals at prices that are easy on working-class wallets. Designated in 2012 as one of Korea's five major food-themed streets and one of the top 100 tourist sites in Korea in 2015, Anjirang Gopchang Alley is not only a food district representative of Nam-gu but an international attraction that is frequented by tourists from all over the world.

Tip

Because the restaurants and shops are closed on different days, it is recommended that visitors check the schedule of each restaurant or shop in advance. There are two public parking lots in the area. Although some establishments have their own parking lot, it is more convenient, in most cases, to use the public parking lots, due to the general lack of parking space. Also, as the street leading to Anjirang Gopchang Alley is a one-way street, visitors should exercise caution when using it.

The Anjirang Street of Youth Festival aims to promote two of Daegu's most representative foods, gopchang and makchang, as well as transform Daegu's most famous food street into an area infused with youth culture. This year's festival included a wide range of activities and foods as well as the "Mimi&Lock Food Industry Expo," which was held to promote the excellence of Nam-gu foods and highlight the need for improvements in culinary culture. With performances by popular singers, hands-on programs, and a flea market, the festival offers plenty for visitors of all ages to enjoy every year.

Tip

As traffic access is largely restricted during the festival period, it is best to take public transportation. Another reason to not miss out on the festival is the special discounts offered by many of the gopchang restaurants!

Address | 1501-2, Daemyeong-dong, Nam-gu (Apsan Ppallaeteo Park and Apsan Food Town)
Inquiries | +82-53-664-3262 (Department of Culture and PR)

Held for the 24th time in 2017, after having begun in 1987 as a sporting event for Nam-gu residents under the title "Daedeokje Festival" this is a local festival that reflects the traditions and local character of Nam-gu. The region's most representative culture and tourism festival, it is normally held in April or early May, when the Retusa fringe tree—the symbol of Nam-gu—and cherry blossoms are in full bloom. The festival makes a major contribution to strengthening local community ties by encouraging harmony and communication among residents. Starting with the 22nd event, the name of the festival was changed (in Korean) from "Daedeokje Festival" to "Daedeokje Apsan Laundry Area Festival" as a means of making it better reflect local characteristics. The Daedeokje Apsan Laundry Area Festival, which focuses on local historical and cultural contexts, is expected to promote awareness of everyday, traditional Korean culture, enhance Nam-gu's image as a cultural center, and differentiate the festival from competing events.

Tip

During the festival, cars are blocked from entering the area, and bus routes are altered. Due to these traffic restrictions, visitors are advised to use the Daedeok Public Parking Lot and the temporary parking facilities made available at Daeduk Culture Center.

Inquiries | +82-53-664-2174 (Department of Culture and PR)

Gosangol Dinosaur Park is an experience space that was created to preserve the over 10 dinosaur footprint fossils discovered in the Apsan area that date back approximately 100 million years to the Jurassic and Cretaceous periods. One fossil, which was discovered in a flat piece of bedrock about 23 to 26 square meters in size near a stream along one of Apsan Mountain's hiking trails, features four or five footprints that are believed to have been made by herbivores—specifically, the three-toed ornithopod and round-footed sauropod. In particular, the presence of a wave-patterned fossil, which are known to form in shallow lakes, and a type of fossil that forms only in environments where the water has completely dried up have contributed to making this park so highly regarded as a space for hands-on dinosaur education. At the park, visitors are greeted by figures of giant dinosaurs, including the Tyrannosaurus and Spinosaurus. Also featuring a photo zone, trick art, and a hands-on fossil discovery experience area for kids, Gosangol Dinosaur Park is a wonderful place for parents to enjoy a day with their children.

Famous for housing Treasure No. 1856 (a painting of Ksitigarbha Bodhisattva and the Ten Underworld Kings), Seobongsa Temple is said to have been built in 1920 by a buddhist. A project to renovate the temple got underway in the 1970s, resulting in the transformation of its traditional wooden structures to the majestic structures that stand there today, including Daeungbojeon, Myeongbujeon, and Samseonggak. Daeungbojeon is a smaller version of the jeokmyeolbogung (building that houses Buddha's sarira) at Tongdosa Temple and has a roof characterized by a unique architectural style. Myeongbujeon also houses a wooden Ksitigarbha Bodhisattva Triad and Siwangsang (statue of 10 judges of the dead in Buddhism) (Daegu Tangible Cultural Heritage No. 76), which were created by nine monk-painters (including Seung Il) who were prominent in Gyeongsangbuk-do in the late 17th century. As these statues are each accompanied by various records that have survived to this day and are highly sophisticated in terms of their artistic structure, they serve as valuable resources for academic research.

Tip

Painting of Ksitigarbha Bodhisattva and the Ten Underworld Kings

This painting was produced in 1741 through the joint efforts of Segwan, a monk-painter who was based at Jikjisa Temple in the 18th century, and his eight assistants. Its creation preceded that of Segwan's most representative work, the Jikjisa Temple Three Buddhas Painting (1744).

99-Stair Mural Village

Address | 28-1, Icheon-ro 29-gil, near Nam-gu

Located at the foot of Sudosan Mountain, the "99-Stair Mural Village" is characterized by the rustic and simple beauty that is typical of Korea's rural villages and features a high concentration of old hanok (traditional Korean house). The alleys, which previously consisted of dark cement walls, have been covered with beautiful wall murals created by university student volunteers. Among them, the mural that expresses the wish for the health and longevity of village residents is particularly popular. The 99-Stair Mural Village is a wonderful weekend destination that combines nature and the whimsical warmth of mural paintings.

Tip

Book cafe "Dajeong"

A book café housed in a renovated hanok (traditional Korean house) inside Seobongsa Temple, Dajeong is quiet, comfortable, and the perfect place to enjoy a cup of tea. Beverages are sold at affordable prices, and there is also a selection of fermented teas that are made in-house.

Bongdeok Restaurant Street

Address | Jungang-daero 22-gil, Nam-gu
(Garden Hotel ⇔Jungdonggyo Bridge, 0.7 kilometers)

Inquiries | +82-53-664-2765 (Department of Sanitation)

The renovation of Bongdeok Restaurant Street began in 2009 with the aim of reviving the famous foods and restaurants of the area by making them more visually pleasing for modern customers. Today, the street is famous among foodies as a nostalgic place to relax and is also gaining a reputation as a new landmark of Nam-gu for the unique foods that it offers.

Tip

During the day, Bongdeok Restaurant Street is fairly quiet. As most of the restaurants serve dishes that are usually enjoyed at dinnertime, such as Andong galbi, the area doesn't really come alive until late in the evening. Those who wish to see the true beauty of Bongdeok Restaurant Street, which is unofficially known as a "yashik (night food) specialty street," are encouraged to visit in the evening.
